

To the strivers.

The path you walk is long
It starts at birth and goes beyond death

I see it on you, the weight it carries
In your heart I see the flames, buried.
Yet when we talk the warmth is felt
A sign of strength, of future and fame.

Nonetheless, the barriers are built ★ None is close to the top
Careful you are of the sick and the hope
Action you take to vet and to grow

Grow you will, regardless of pain

You see, your aim is not to gain
It is not for fortune or fame

You are here because you care
For those who do not have it fair

See, many are scared
But you will be there

It is rare
You break a smile.

at least one that's seen for miles

But when you do, people come
For they know, you are not done.

On you walk as we hang up but you need to know, I don't give up

You see, I have learned

Walking in front or behind

Helps no one, and wastes time

Instead I promise to join your journey
To walk alongside you
All the way past mercury
