

The Dance With Death is one that brightens the colors ships and twirls and weight on your shoulders it makes you smile and beats you till it all hurts

Takes you to deep dark despair and makes you rare

Pair that with snaring you in temptation and vices scaring you farther with damnation that entices eventually you get there, what if I leave the floor?

Relief from life with death, what's the score?
over 220 thousand each year die by their hand

But you see there are dead walking
At the store, in the band, having a beer, still more

Poor, old, young, rich, it does not miss

For they have lost themselves with a wish

To be 'normal' or fit in, to be cool or seen at school
To be 'enough' or to win, but they end a fool

Missing out on the waltz and the tango

a beautiful expression of presence

They have missed the chance to dance in the rain too, a wonderful opportunity to release their essence

You see there is no beginning or end

No winning, losing, or tie around the bend

There is only the present, so take a deep breath and remember.

This is the dance with death.
