

The solving of 'what's next'
feels like an impossible problem where do I start? It's not like it's written in text It's not like I can just find it at a job or gym

Really the only idea I have is take action but towards where I don't know

So upstream from action is clarity on wants if towards that confusing, cloudy sea of cravings I must go Then I am at a loss for how to plan

With this state of no meaning I must avoid pleasure as the great man Frankl said is so
