

The Flow of Feelings
can leave one reeling, the amount of power they've channeled the walls they've worked to battle, all in the interest of tapping into the soul, to call into the river of energy

The achievement of that goal is never ending

One may always be a foal and a mustang

For if the call has rang then the heart has sang a resonance felt and chosen by YOU.

So how can this be said as true? What are the clues that give me this view?

Well let me tell you a story, a core memory of mine that has changed my experience of time.

A climb, some rhymes, and a woman, my dime, I had prophesied this leap, so I was prepared when the climb was steep.

I said succinctly 'The girl comes when you are doing the work and when you realize they are not the door to anything that you need'
I rose from the floor and now feed on that work.
I write, putting my heart on paper, putting effort to inputs.
The woman has come, a kiss given, heart shared which left me with walls to break and feelings to flood.

In my blood I knew the flow of emotion fierce as I wrote notes, my mind and body expanding.

My walls have now welcomed her in, I am trapped no more in my own mind, but rather free to love so deeply my body reacts with tears not capped Three weeks we have spent a taste of memories that I'll keep inside of my mind. I know that on this grind of inputs come thoughts of impatience, a result of ego combined with the excellent depth I feel for her

I am hungry now for action in her direction, I know as I have said, that the time will come.

I will make that time inevitable

I will work until my hands bleed and mind breaks.

Recover and return.

This is the way and I want it.

So let the Feelings Flow as my greatness grows
I am full of power, over scarcity I will tower
so I must give my woman her flowers