

A day of gratitude, graced with good eats soon, for many, these days will be filled with sweet treats
For me I'd rather gather rays of sun on my body and finish feasts Taking leaps towards a future where I am more rare In the best ways. These longings of greatness flays on my hard back as I dodge negative thoughts as a pilot does flak

Beach House, Loving Woman, Mind races, Deep Breath

Do reps, Next step, Next step, Next step

Pressure makes diamonds and friction makes traction

These reminders only helping a fraction, there is weight I carry now, even before a vow An opening of options, I can only push myself and hope for adoption
The question is how as I look off the bow, the wind of E time fills my sails whisking the ship of me into the waters of the future. I ponder the stories of me's that came before... me How did they succeed, how did they fail? Am I too worried about being great that I never will be? What's the middle ground Around & around the wheels in my head spin