

Heart Ache

Always starts from a feeling as sweet as cake
A longing that your soul knows isn't cake
No, no no no. This is real and deep, a feeling to keep
To hold, to behold even when the climb is steep.

It is a gravity like no other, as if my heart would Walk away from me to be with you. My own dreams would leave it torn in two. Nonetheless on it goes a pull so true I know it's a cue.

The seas have waves, matter has weight, and I have this fire inside. The flames confide in my mind the ways to show up well on this ride.
Poems, Pleasure, Play, Punctuality, Duality in me
To be better at love, to love to be better

I hope and work for each to be loved and to love.
The immensity of energy is plain to see for me. Like a tree in the winds of distance I may be battered, but I won't break.
I know that my mind sees this as high stakes, it talks with my ego to throw the brakes. But I am in, all the way.
There is no expectations to pay, only this pursuit to play in.
So I will stay in my want of you
I pray only you see my ache and pursuit too.